

What Employers Say

Carla Webster, Senior Recruiting Manager at Affiliated Computer Services: "ACS has hired more than 100 individuals with disabilities in the state. We are grateful for our valuable partnership with the Kentucky Office of Vocational Rehabilitation. We at ACS believe all people with disabilities should be able to work."

Denny Simonavice, manager at Meijer on Preston Highway in Louisville, hired Trent Altman several years ago. Meijer's acceptance of an individual's capabilities has been a model of job carving to enable Trent's success. Meijer on Preston Highway in Louisville has employed a number of individuals with autism. Denny Simonavice recently said: "Trent is a legacy to all of us here at Meijer."

Tony Hamilton, owner of B A's Automotive in Paducah who has been receptive to hiring consumers with criminal records, has said: "I think everyone deserves a second chance. If they are ready to work, and they are willing to work, I'll give them the chance they need to make it."

Christy Henry Gregory of Sandy Valley Fasteners in Paintsville: "It has been a great experience for me working with individuals with disabilities. These individuals have become part of our team at Sandy Valley Fasteners." They are very hard workers and have been a big help to my business."

What Employers Say

Dorothy Eggelston from CSL Plasma: " The people you (OVR) bring to us are people who are suited to us. We hire for attitude- we can always teach skills. PACE helps us see the personality traits to determine if the individual will fit with our organization. We are glad to be part of this program."
